DR. WHO

In a new adventure the Doctor and his companions land on the planet Telos and face the menace of the terrible Cybermen—and another mysterious peril

1

Not just the Cybermen, but the deadly Cybermats as well—the Doctor has some formidable enemies in this new four-part adventure. What are the Cybermats like?

5.50 You'll have to wait till this evening to see them, but it's said that they are small, highly dangerous robot animals.

Soon after Tardis lands on the planet Telos the Doctor sniffs adventure in the air. Precise as ever, he writes up his diary . . .

Telos, September

'The Daleks are at last destroyed—or are they? They are such fiendish creations that anything is possible. Victoria is settling down well with Jamie and myself. The horror of her captivity and the tragic end of her father has not embittered her—she is learning to smile again—I think she has a very pretty smile. Jamie is too shy to admit it. We must look after her well.'

Today we landed on Telos . . . it is strange how familiar it all is . . . somewhere on this planet lie the remains of the Cybermen—they are supposed to be extinct, but I wonder if they really are? There is so little in life one can take for granted!'

We have met up with an expedition from Earth who are here to excavate the Cybermen.

I am more than a little suspicious of some of the members of the Expedition—my instincts tell me that terrible danger awaits us!'

I shall have to take great care of my two young companions—Jamie is very brave, but he is apt to be impetuous . . . as for Victoria she is as yet unaware of the adventures that overtake me in my travels through Space and Time . . .'

Deborah Watling plays Victoria—a new companion for the Doctor and Jamie in their travels through space and time
